STM has a web-based architecture that can be quickly deployed and easily customized to fit existing business processes—resulting in faster time-to-value. Every April for the past decade, Inbound Logistics Magazine recognizes the top information technology companies that enable logistics excellence. In 2009, more than 500 companies were considered for this recognition. Using surveys, interviews and other research, Inbound Logistics editors selected the Top 100 Logistics IT Providers for leading the way to logistics excellence. This designation matches the Inbound Logistics readers' fast-changing needs to the capabilities of the companies selected. All companies achieving this recognition were selected for leadership in delivering simple, efficient implementation and solid return on investment.

"Inbound Logistics readers face complex, demanding challenges: matching demand to supply and aligning their operations to support that business process evolution; speeding and reducing inventory; and managing complete visibility of products from one end of the supply chain to the other," said Felecia Stratton, Editor, Inbound Logistics. "Logistics technology has become the pathway to supply chain excellence and a lifeline to enterprise survivability. Inbound Logistics is proud to honor Arigo as a 2009 Top 100 Logistics IT Provider for excellence in providing solutions that answer our readers' needs for quick ROI, while still maintaining ease of use and efficient implementation."

"Arigo is committed to providing innovative technology that delivers best-in-class visibility throughout the supply chain and fast time-to-value," said Donny Askin, CEO, Arigo.
